Dear Parents/Carers,

Some spaces have become available for singing lessons at St Clare's, starting from September 2020.

I am an experienced singing teacher, who has taught children from ages 4 – 18, and have taught at St Clare's for the last six years. I provide lessons individually tailored to pupils' needs, abilities and inclinations. I regularly enter pupils for singing exams with the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music and the London College of Music Musical Theatre exams. These are nationally recognised qualifications that provide a definite goal for our lessons. I also like to provide performance opportunities for my pupils to demonstrate their accomplishments.

Every child has a different voice, and I make sure to assess every pupil's vocal range and timbre. I choose songs with my pupils, so that they can select an enjoyable repertoire to work through, whilst I transpose where necessary to suit each pupil's vocal range. My lessons also focus on improving aural awareness, sight singing and music theory. These skills allow children to not only improve their singing ability, but to become all-rounded musicians, able to read music for themselves.

Singing lessons have transferable skills. Research has proven that singing not only increases confidence, it also has physical benefits – exercising the upper body muscles and respiratory system.

Saxophone Lessons

At St Clare's we are currently widening our musical opportunities for children and I'm pleased to also offer saxophone lessons this academic year.

If you would like to know more about singing or saxophone lessons, or are interested in starting, then please e-mail me at the above address, or fill in the form below and return it to Mrs Layland. I will then contact you with further information.

Yours faithfully,

E.C Laidlaw-Height
